Advancing education equity and racial justice for all children.

KNOW YOUR RIGHTS: EQUAL ACCESS TO PUBLIC EDUCATION

Did you know? Under federal law, school districts are required to provide all children with equal access to public education at the elementary and secondary level. Students should not be kept out of school because of their citizenship/immigration status or their parents' citizenship/immigration status, whether real or assumed. In addition, schools cannot request information with the purpose or result of denying access to public schools based on race, color, or national origin.

All students, regardless of their immigration status or the immigration status of their parents, have the right to:

- Enroll in public school, even if they do not have a U.S. birth certificate or social security number
- Participate in school activities
- Receive special education services if they have a disability
- Receive special services, including transportation, if they are experiencing homelessness under the McKinney-Vento Act***
- Receive appropriate language assistance services to learn English
- Have school communicate with their family in a language their family can understand, such as through translated materials or an interpreter
- Remain silent if an immigration agent tries to talk to them at school

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Can a school employee ask my family questions about whether we reside in the district?

A: Most of the time, schools require proof of residency in the district for enrollment. But there are many exceptions, including when a student does not have a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime residence, as when they are staying doubled up due to loss of housing.*

Q: Can my school provide an immigration agent with access to my school records?

A: Generally, no, schools can only disclose basic directory information without parental consent. The exception is when the requesting agency has a valid court order or subpoena in compliance with federal law.

Q: Do school resource officers (SROs) work with immigration agents?

A: Not usually, unless the SRO is employed through the county's local law enforcement agency and there is an extraordinary circumstance involving public safety.
